Welcome SIX’ers.

Welcome to the first SIX Summer School held in the Americas! Our expectations are bold. We want you to leave Vancouver with a social innovation story that enhances all our social change initiatives; indeed, those of social movements everywhere.

And why not?

We are a bold lot. Combined, our experiences have produced a wisdom that gets to the heart of the challenges we face. This has the potential to surmount our toughest challenges; to expand justice and equity for people and our planet; to leave a better world for future generations.

Social innovation makes itself with our love and creativity and courage; that is what enhances our techniques and technologies. This enables resilience to flourish. No one knows that better than our regions’ indigenous peoples. Canada’s aboriginal ingenuity surrounds our SIX gathering just as do the sea breezes, waves, mountains and clouds. The opening quote is from British Columbia’s greatest oral storyteller, Skaay. He comes from Haida Gwaii, a group of islands off BC’s north coast; a Haida Nation. His is a culture that has withstood major calamities; yet, his people survive. Indeed, today they thrive. Fragile, like all of us, but equally full of life and wisdom.

With your attention and support, love and creativity will thrive during our time together in Vancouver - we will each be filled with life and wisdom.

So go ahead.

If something catches your eye over the next few days, fly right up to it. Push your possibilities and imagination through! This cannot be taught. You already know.

So, please - love, create, listen and enjoy. Be present and be yourself. We welcome you.

Sincerely,

Cheryl, Louise, So, Devon, Al - your organizing team.
About the Organisers

SOCIAL INNOVATION EXCHANGE
national innovation exchange.org

SIX is now the world’s primary network for social innovation. It connects social innovators in order to create and spread new ideas and solutions about how society can be strengthened and improved. It works with cities, national governments, and international bodies such as the European Commission to improve the methods with which our societies find better solutions to challenges. We foster genuine, active connections between the people building innovative solutions, from the grassroots to the policymaking level. By promoting learning across sectors, fields and countries, and by communicating and disseminating ideas about social innovation, SIX builds the capacities of its members and enables them to work together to develop resources for social innovators around the world.

SOCIAL INNOVATION GENERATION
sigeneration.ca

Social Innovation Generation (SiG) seeks to address Canada’s social and ecological challenges by creating a culture of continuous social innovation. Our focus will be on social innovation that has the potential for impact, durability and scale. SiG is a collaborative partnership between The J.W. McConnell Family Foundation, the University of Waterloo, the MaRS Discovery District, and the PLAN Institute. Our ultimate goal is to support whole system change through changing the broader economic, cultural and policy context in Canada to allow social innovations to flourish.

BRITISH COLUMBIA’S PARTNERS FOR SOCIAL IMPACT
socialimpactpartners.ca

BC Partners for Social Impact is the product of the work of the BC Social Innovation Council, which was appointed in January 2011. In April 2012, the Council presented a summary of their findings and presented an Action Plan to the BC Government. The recommendations focused on five key areas: supporting social enterprise; legislative enablement; social innovation labs; engaging communities; and learning and research. The Partners represent a wide and diverse section of BC and include leaders in nonprofits, businesses, universities, community groups, and at all levels of government. The group is chaired by representatives from each main sector. The Partners have three main goals:

1. Collaborate across sectors to implement the recommendations to the Action Plan;
2. Share key social innovation information across initiatives and networks;
3. Identify emerging trends, challenges and opportunities to advance social innovation.

Social Innovation Week Vancouver

BC Partners for Social Impact is proud to be hosting Social Innovation Week in Vancouver on May 26-30, 2014. Social Innovation Week will bring some of the world’s leading social innovators - like you - to meet with Vancouver’s social innovation community.

Should you arrive in Vancouver early or decide to linger later into the week, we strongly encourage you attend one or all of the following events. Let one of our staff members know and we will register you.

RADIUS Social Entrepreneur Failure Wake
May 26, 6-9:30 p.m., Backstage Lounge, Granville Island

Brave social entrepreneurs share their stories of failure with an Irish Wake style celebration to help fete our failed attempts.

An Introduction to the Power of Narrative Workshop
May 27, 9 a.m.-1 p.m., Park Room, Christ Church Cathedral

South African author and narrative expert, Chené Swart shares a powerful framework and explores a series of questions including "How do we change and challenge popular beliefs and the way we do things?” and “How do we re-author our individual and communal narratives?”

FUEL: the Future of Urbanity, the Environment & our Lifestyle
May 29, 6pm-9pm Vancouver Playhouse

FUEL is a future forum that will explore the global issues of our time by encouraging conversation, and therefore understanding, of how we can collectively create a better world. Over the course of two days, FUEL will connect innovators from around the globe with local entrepreneurs, designers, engaged citizens and leaders from public, private and nonprofit sectors in a dynamic and inspirational experience.

Social Frontiers Research Conference
May 30, all day, Creekside Community Recreation Center

Building upon the pioneering work leading social innovation research, this symposium will explore how social innovation and culture come together.

Connect Vancouver Ideas Jam
May 30, 1-6 p.m., Museum of Vancouver

Through an afternoon Ideas Jam, we will explore big questions on social innovation themes that are important to the citizens of Vancouver. The jam will explore topics such as social entrepreneurship, radical sustainability, art for social change, healthy democracy, belonging, and generational inequality. A late afternoon reception follows featuring music, drinks and the local art of J.B. MacKinnon's Re-wilding and Michael Hall's Entanglement.

Connect Vancouver Urban Outdoor Celebration
May 30, 6pm until late, Vanier Park

Gen Why Media and CityStudio present an evening celebrating the integration of culture, creativity, ingenuity and social innovation. An outdoor celebration kicks off at 6pm, featuring local food trucks, eatART (energy awareness through art) robotic sculptures, bubble blowing, First Nations dance and drumming, and other cultural performances. Children are welcome!
CONNECT VANCOUVER

URBAN OUTDOOR FESTIVAL

FRIDAY MAY 30
6-11 PM
Museum of Vancouver/Vanier Park

Join the Vancouver public and global innovators as we reimagine social connectedness in an outdoor evening of conversation, celebration, public art and music in Vanier Park. All are welcome and encouraged to bring kids, blankets, snacks, instruments and a willingness to connect with others.

Featuring eatART (energy awareness through art), robotic sculptures, bubble blowing, local food trucks, cultural performances and outdoor photography exhibits: Michael Hall’s ENTANGLEMENT and his new exhibit PROXIMITY - an installation of illuminated images exploring the intimacy, intensity and interconnectedness of modern human relationships.

Walks, talks, catching breath: reflection and conversation |
Concurrent Sessions - Sectors

Social innovators have to be wise travelers. The heroic, ‘do it yourself,’ model of social change makes for a good story but isn’t true in practice. Social innovators need to work within and across their organisations, to think and act together for social innovation. What tools, processes, and strategies can support our everyday work? Which organisations have focused strategically on shifting culture for change and how do they do it?

Getting to Granville Island

FROM THE AIRPORT

Taxi (20-30 Minutes)
Black Top and Checker Cabs (604) 683-4567
Yellow Cab (604) 681-1111

Public Transit (50-60 Minutes)
1. Skytrain – walk to platform sign “Canada Line to Waterfront”
2. Get off at Olympic Village Station
3. On West 2nd avenue at Cambie Street, transfer to Bus “#50 Waterfront Station” going westbound
4. Get off at West 2nd Avenue at Anderson Street
5. Walk northbound on Anderson
6. Turn right on Cartright street and continue straight to False Creek Community Centre

FROM DOWNTOWN VANCOUVER
BY BUS

#50 False Creek
The #50 False Creek bus comes from Gastown in the downtown Vancouver area, along Granville St., and stops just off Granville Island, at the intersection of Anderson St. and West 2nd Ave. It will let you off on the southeast side of West 2nd Ave. Look for the large Granville Island sign and the yellow and rainbow-ed Kids Market along Anderson St. northward.

Other Bus Routes
The Granville & 5th Ave at the south end of the Granville Bridge, is also an interchange for many of the urban and suburban routes. Hop off your bus at 5th Ave and walk 5-10 minutes northward under the bridge to get to Granville Island.

For more information about Vancouver’s bus system, see www.translink.bc.ca or call (604) 953-3333.
By Boat

Inexpensive and fun, the Aquabus and False Creek Ferry provide short rides across the False Creek Inlet, from the downtown side (north) to the Granville Island side (south).

The Aquabus and ferries run continuously from 7am to 10:30pm. Check their websites for specific schedules and information.

The rainbow-coloured Aquabus travels around False Creek with stops at the foot of Hornby St., Stamp’s Landing, Yaletown (foot of Davie St.), and Science World. The Aquabus dock on Granville Island is located between the Public Market and the Arts Club Theatre.

FALSE CREEK FERRY
granvilleislandferries.bc.ca

The False Creek Ferries also travel around the Inlet and stop at the Maritime Museum (west of Granville Island), the Aquatic Centre (under the Burrard St. Bridge, on the downtown side (north) of the Inlet), Stamp’s Landing, and Science World (the easternmost point of False Creek). The False Creek Ferry dock on Granville Island is located near the entrance to Bridges Restaurant.

GRANVILLE ISLAND

Must See & Do

Public Market

- Arrive hungry! Some favourite places:
  - Oyama Sausage: A carnivore’s paradise.
  - Lee's Donuts: Good old-fashioned donuts.
  - Siegel’s Bagels: Warm, wood-fired Montreal style bagels. The rugoleh are amazing.
  - The Stock Market: Heart-warming soups.
  - Granville Island Tea Company: Tea by the cup, as well as countless loose leaf teas to purchase.
- Net Loft: Perfect for picking up souvenirs.
- Kids Only Market: An even better place to pick up souvenirs if you have little ones.
- Granville Island Brewery: There’s a tasting lounge where you can sample the beers, as well as a retail shop.
- The view between the bridges, but beware of the giant seagulls

Must Eat

- Edible Canada: Fantastic food that focuses on being seasonal and local. We’ve only been a few times, but we recommend the eggs benedict or duck poutine for brunch, and the crispy squid, pork belly, and anything with the duck fat fries for dinner.

- Go Fish: Delicious fish & chips and fish tacones (taco + cones). Note: It’s located just before the entrance to the Island in a little shack (We mean that in the best way possible) by all the boats.
- A Bread Affair: You will fall in love here.
- Rogers Chocolates: A local chocolatier famous for their Victoria Creams.

Insider Tip

Walk along False Creek to either Kits Beach or Olympic Village for a lovely stroll. Just follow the well-marked pedestrian/cyclist path.

FALSE CREEK/OLYMPIC VILLAGE

Must See & Do

- The giant bird statues
- The view of False Creek – Science World is the giant golf ball at the end.

Must Eat

- Craft Beer Market: Not only are the 100+ beers on tap, the food is good too.

Insider Tip

Walk along False Creek to Granville Island or Chinatown. Just follow the well-marked pedestrian/cyclist path.

DOWNTOWN

Must See & Do

- Coal Harbour
  - Canada Place for the view, the Convention Centre, and the Olympic Torch. Be sure to find the pixelated whale statue and the giant raindrop.
- West End
  - Walk along Davie Street and see the famous rainbow sidewalk.
  - English Bay Beach
- Yaletown
  - Numerous patios to enjoy a drink and a nibble on.
- Robson Street and Pacific Centre for all your shopping needs.

Must Eat

- Japadog: Hot dogs with Japanese-style toppings.
- Homer Street Café: Amazing rotisserie chicken.
- Guu Izakaya: Everything will be amazing, but try the fried chicken. Note: There are a few locations.
• Dinesty: Northern Chinese Food. Try the xiao long bao (which you can watch being made on site), beef roll, deep fried garlic tofu, chicken wings, and hand cut noodles.
• Santouka Ramen: Authentic Japanese ramen
• Marutama Ramen: Yet another ramen shop. This is a chain from Asia.
• Nero Belgian Waffle Bar: Dangerously decadent waffles.
• Beard Papa’s Cream Puffs: Yummm.

GASTOWN

Must See & Do

• Walk the cobblestone streets, it’s particularly quaint at night with the vintage lamp posts.

Must Eat

• Deacon’s Corner: Good ol’ diner food.
• Alibi Room: Great beers and yummy food.
• La Taqueria: Amazing tacos. This is no Taco Bell, these are Authentic Mexican tacos.
• Meat and Bread: It couldn’t get any simpler. Get the Porchetta.
• Save on Meats: A recently refurbished and revamped social enterprise (the other half of the shop was a butcher’s).
• Chill Winston: Fantastic patio.
• The Flying Pig: Great happy hour. Try the brussel sprouts. Note: there are a few locations.
• Peckinpah: Southern BBQ.
• Steamworks: A local brew pub with a great view.

Speakers & Participants

Aaron JOHANNES

Aaron is the Director of Spectrum Consulting, Collaborative: research, learning, press, an independent social enterprise of Spectrum Society. Spectrum has successfully included folks with disabilities in their neighborhoods through individualized supports for 25 years, based on the concepts, “express yourself; find your voice; build your network.” Spectrum Consulting is the collaboration of 8 people, half of whom have disabilities.

Facilitating through dialogue planning, world cafe hosting and curriculum development and, increasingly, using graphic facilitation to ensure understanding, inclusion and building on ideas is one of his great pleasures. He recently co-hosted, with local self advocate groups and the agencies that support them, strengths based community mapping projects in Victoria and Vernon through a B.C. Ideas Community Living Innovation award, as well as off-shoot projects in four other communities.

He is the co-author and illustrator of two books and has edited two other anthologies as well as facilitating translations of government documents and projects into plain language and graphics with focus groups of people with disabilities. He is a popular workshop leader, instructor and graphic facilitator who has worked with groups of professionals, parents, self advocates and community members from the far North of B.C. and down to Nashville TN.

He is the recent recipient of a MA, Integrated Studies, in Equity and Education, with a focus on how people with disabilities participate as leaders. Liz Etmanski is pretty much his favourite drawing partner.

Ada WONG

Ada has led a varied and boundary crossing career as lawyer, local politician, social entrepreneur, educator and a staunch advocate of social innovation, creative education and cultural development.

She founded Hong Kong Institute of Contemporary Culture (HKICC), a non-profit organization embracing a broad cultural vision for the development of sustainable cultural pluralism and a creative civil society. Among its projects, HKICC founded Hong Kong’s only art high school, the HKICC Lee Shau Kee School of Creativity (www.creativehk.edu.hk), in 2006 and Ada is the School’s supervisor.

Ada was also involved in district administration and was an elected councillor of the Urban Council and then Wan Chai District Council between 1995 and 2008, serving as Chairperson of the WCDC in the last four years.

In 2009 she founded the Make A Difference (MaD) initiative (www.mad.asia), a continuing platform for Asia believing in the potential of young people as changemakers, and inspiring them to creative positive personal, economic, social and environment change. In the last five years, more than 20,000 young people from 160 Asian cities attended the annual MaD forum, the year-round MaD School and other MaD events.

Ada’s latest social venture is The Good Lab (www.goodlab.hk), a co-working space and a collaborative community for social innovation, entrepreneurship and tri-sector understanding in Hong Kong. She is also a Board and Global Council member of Social Innovation Exchange.
Ada received her BA (Hons) from Pomona College, California, USA and M Ed from the University of Hong Kong. She is an Honorary Fellow of the Lingnan University and Hong Kong Institute of Education.

Adam KAHANE

Adam Kahane is Chairman of Reos North America. Reos (www.reospartners.com) is a social enterprise that helps businesses, governments, and civil society organisations address complex social challenges.

Adam is a leading organizer, designer and facilitator of processes through which business, government, and civil society leaders can work together to address such challenges. He has worked in more than fifty countries, in every part of the world, with executives and politicians, generals and guerrillas, civil servants and trade unionists, community activists and United Nations officials, clergy and artists.

Adam is the author of Solving Tough Problems: An Open Way of Talking, Listening, and Creating New Realities, about which Nelson Mandela said: “This breakthrough book addresses the central challenge of our time: finding a way to work together to solve the problems we have created.” He is also the author of Power and Love: A Theory and Practice of Social Change and Transformative Scenario Planning: Working Together to Change the Future.

During the early 1990s, Adam was head of Social, Political, Economic and Technological Scenarios for Royal Dutch Shell in London. He has held strategy and research positions with Pacific Gas and Electric Company (San Francisco), the Organisation for Economic Cooperation and Development (Paris), the International Institute for Applied Systems Analysis (Vienna), the Institute for Energy Economics (Tokyo), and the Universities of Oxford, Toronto, British Columbia, California, and the Western Cape.

In 1991 and 1992, Adam facilitated the Mont Fleur Scenario Exercise, in which a diverse group of South Africans worked together to effect the transition to democracy. Since then he has led many such seminal cross-sectoral dialogue-and-action processes, throughout the world. He was one of the sixteen outstanding individuals featured in Fast Company’s first annual “Who’s Fast,” and is a member of Global Business Network, the International Futures Forum, and the World Academy of Art and Science.

Adam has a B.Sc. in Physics (First Class Honours) from McGill University (Montreal), an M.A. in Energy and Resource Economics from the University of California (Berkeley), and an M.A. in Applied Behavioural Science from Bastyr University (Seattle). He has also studied negotiation at Harvard Law School and cello performance at Institut Marguerite-Bourgeoys.

Adam and his wife Dorothy live in Montreal and Cape Town.

Aditya Dev SOOD

Dr. Aditya Dev Sood is a serial social entrepreneur with a background in Design and the Social Sciences. He is a former Fulbright Scholar with two doctorates from the University of Chicago.

Sood has built several different kinds of organizations, all of which are co-located at the Vihara Innovation Campus in New Delhi.

The Center for Knowledge Societies (www.cks.in) is an innovation consulting firm, which focuses on user research, user experience design, design strategy and systems innovation.
The Bihar Innovation Lab (BIL), supported by the Bill and Melinda Gates Foundation, works with the Bihar state government to promote innovation in health and other developmental areas.

The Adianta School for Leadership (www.adianta.org) provides a professional post-graduate diploma through a unique learning-by-doing pedagogic approach, delivered through a network of working professionals.

The Startup Tunnel (STun) is a new kind of incubator-accelerator focused on social impact challenges in health, education, financial services and governance.

The Civic Innovation Lab (Civilab) is a new initiative focused on citizen participation, open data and the citizen-centric delivery of urban services.

Since 2011, Sood has routinely convened the Design Public Conclave dedicated to exploring how innovation can serve the public interest. He is now collaborating with the Social Innovation Exchange towards as Summer School in India in 2015. On weekends he can be found making sculpture, brewing beer and trekking with his wife and young son.

AI ETMANSKI

Al is wondering if he should add social curator to his previous roles as altar boy, community organizer and social entrepreneur. He is a founding partner in the Canadian collaboration, Social Innovation Generation (SIG). (http://sigeneration.ca) He co-chairs BC Partners for Social Impact. His two books have been adapted to a variety of countries and jurisdictions. His new books on social innovation should be out soon. Please don’t ask him when!

Al is an Ashoka fellow, (http://canada.ashoka.org) and a faculty member of John McKnight’s Asset Based Community Development Institute (ABCD) www.abcdinstitute.org

He is co-founder of Planned Lifetime Advocacy Network (PLAN)(www.plan.ca). He proposed and led the successful campaign to establish the world’s first savings plan for people with disabilities – the Registered Disability Savings Plan (www.RDSP.com). He is equally proud of his part in creating a new approach to adult guardianship in British Columbia that doesn’t exist anywhere else in the world.

He accepts advice on the most appropriate role for a baby boomer who still wants to make a contribution.

Ali GRANT

Ali Grant is a long-term community development coach and consultant. She has worked with local and provincial non-profit organizations, researchers, evaluators, change agents and all levels of government to provide strategic coaching and consulting on a variety of change initiatives. Over the last decade, Ali has been focusing on catalyzing health, well-being and healthy development in individuals, organizations and communities through her work with innovative and collaborative initiatives that embrace the full complexity of people and the places in which they live, work and play. Ali is currently working for the City of Vancouver leading the development of the Healthy City Strategy, a long-term integrated plan for healthy people, healthy places and a healthy planet.
Allyson HEWITT

Allyson leads the social innovation programs at MaRS including the Ontario node of the national initiative, Social Innovation Generation (SiG). With funding from the Province of Ontario, this program supports social entrepreneurs and promotes social innovation through the provision of advisory services; the social finance programs and services of the Centre for Impact Investing; ecosystem development; education; and public policy. She is also helping establish the MaRS Solutions Labs, a change lab designed to tackle complex challenges and Studio Y, an initiative designed to support youth in creating and thriving in the new economy.

She is also currently a lecturer in Social Entrepreneurship and Corporate Social Responsibility in the Master in Business, Entrepreneurship & Technology Program and an expert panel member in the Social Innovation Graduate Diploma program both based at the University of Waterloo.

A lifelong social innovator, she last worked at SickKids where she led Safe Kids Canada and was a passionate advocate for children. She was also the Executive Director of Community Information Toronto where she initiated 211, providing streamlined access to human service information. For her leadership on this social innovation she received the Head of the Public Service Award and several other prestigious awards for meritorious public service.

Allyson has been leading and volunteering in not-for-profit organizations for over 25 years. Her academic background is in Criminology, Law, Public Affairs, Voluntary Sector Management and Organizational development including Leading Change.

Amis BOERSMA

Amis Boersma is Knowledge Officer Civic Explorations at Dutch NGO Hivos. The Civic Explorations programme aims to explore, exchange knowledge on and experiment with new trends in citizen’s action. Amis focuses on linking change makers to one another in innovative ways and making insights available for the larger community. Her main interest lies in understanding what motivates people to become active in their societies, and she is specifically passionate about the connection between the personal and the political, and the power of playfulness. Prior to working at Hivos, Amis started her own consultancy - NGO toolkit - to help NGO’s better understanding what the results of their work was and to deal with their donors (and reporting requirements). She has a Masters in Languages and Cultures of Southeast Asia and Oceania, and Ethnic studies and worked with Amnesty Netherlands, Indonesian Human Rights Organization KontraS, Free Voice (now Free Press unlimited) and the International Institute for Asian Studies.

Amy WEINRIEB

Amy is currently working at her dream job as a Social Innovation Associate at MaRS Discovery District. Since graduating with a B.Com specializing in marketing, strategy and environmental studies from McGill University, she has been able go beyond the academic side of social entrepreneurship and really sink her teeth into its practical aspects, such as helping launch the first cohort of Ontario Catapult Microloan recipients with the Centre for Social Innovation.

Amy loves to chat about anything and everything to do with market-based solution to complex social problems, especially food systems!
Ana BOTERO

Ana M Botero is a lawyer with two master degrees, one in Law (LLM) and the other on International Affairs (MIA) from Columbia University (NYC). She started her professional career at the Center International Studies at the Universidad de los Andes in Bogotá as coordinator on international political affairs; shortly thereafter, she enrolled the United Nations as assistant lawyer at the Law of the Sea Office serving in New York and Geneva Headquarters.

Subsequently, she joined the Colombian Ministry of Foreign Affairs and served as a delegate in international negotiations on security and political issues as well as with those related to human rights and illicit drug trafficking. In 1994 she joined CAF as Director of the Secretariat and External Affairs, responsible for CAF’s communication strategy and the overall delivery of the Organization’s mandate referred to its Constitutive Agreement and Rules of Procedure. She acted as the liaison officer with CAF’s shareholding governments and Board of Directors and was the coordinator for protocol, logistics and secretariat services to CAF’s governing bodies. In 2003, Miss Botero was appointed head of a new office responsible for the strategy and implementation of CAF’s Social Responsibility and Community Development Program. Under her leadership, a high-impact set of tools were developed based on shared values, social inclusion and human rights in order to strengthen basic capabilities for empowerment and improving living standards of poor communities. She was appointed Global Leader of Tomorrow at the World Economic Forum in 1998 and is a volunteer member of Special Olympics International. She was the executive director of Fundación Corona in Bogotá Colombia in between december 2010 and June 2012. Since then she acted as a consultant to CAF (Banco de Desarrollo de América Latina) and recently re-joined the bank as Director of Social Innovation.

Andrea Hamilton

Andrea is the Vice President of Social Impact at Generation Capital where she advises her clients on how to put their capital to work for good. She loves the complexities of city life and is fascinated by how change happens in urban environments. Right now, Andrea is particularly interested in understanding how funders can invest in processes of change that lead to positive, sustainable transformations in our communities. Andrea has a Masters in Urban Planning and puts it to use on the Board of Urban + Digital, a Toronto-based not-for-profit that seeks to build dialogue and ideas around the intersection of city planning and technology. She is the co-founder of #hatch, an open ideas forum that connects individuals with great ideas to people with expertise, networks and resources to take those ideas to the next level. Andrea has always been curious about other people, places and cultures and is annoyingly persistent in asking the question “Why?”.

Andrew BARNETT

Andrew has been Director of the UK Branch of the Calouste Gulbenkian Foundation since September 2007.

Andrew joined the Calouste Gulbenkian Foundation from the Joseph Rowntree Foundation where he held the post of Director of Policy Development and Communications. Prior to this, he was Director of Communications at the UK Sports Council and, before that, Head of Public Affairs at the National Consumer Council. Andrew previously held posts at HSBC Holdings, the Arts Council of England, and the Foyer Federation for Youth, as well as working for the Chair of the All-Party Parliamentary Group on Homelessness and Housing Need. He is a Committee Member of Healthwatch England, the statutory national consumer champion in health and social care, of Collaborate, and the Social Innovation Exchange (SIX). He is also a trustee of Addaction, the UK’s leading specialist drug and alcohol treatment charity. He previously served voluntarily in a variety of capacities: as chair of DV8 Physical Theatre, as chair of the trustees of SPACE Studios, a London-based arts property charity; a director of Yorkshire Housing; and as a trustee of St Christopher’s Fellowship, a housing association providing care and support to disadvantaged young people.

Angelique EDMONDS

Trained as an architect, Angelique has worked across multiple sectors to achieve enabling change for a diverse range of clients and communities. She is Creative Director and founder of the School for Creating Change and a Lecturer in the School of Art Architecture & Design at University of South Australia.

Over the past ten years she worked with Indigenous communities in Australia’s remote north, and established design advocacy projects with CALD women in Sydney’s South West and with Youth at risk of homelessness in South Australia (SA). In 2012 she was Engagement Leader of 5000+, an (Australian) National pilot project delivering an Integrated Design Strategy for inner Adelaide. For the Australian Institute of Architects (AIA), she has served as SA Chapter Councillor and National Sustainability committee member where she led the establishment of a Social Sustainability policy for the AIA.

As an educator, she is a member of the AIA National Visiting Panel, which accredits Architecture schools in Australia. Angelique has completed a PhD, M.Phil and degrees in Architecture in Australia and the UK, has taught in 4 different Australian universities.

April RINNE

April Rinne is an expert on the sharing economy (or collaborative economy) and what it means for business, policy, cities, non-profits and global growth markets. She focuses on the power of the sharing economy to transform everything from marketplaces and value creation to public policy, urban planning and employment.

She advises companies, start-ups, local governments, investors and think tanks on a range of issues. Most recently, Rinne was the Chief Strategy Officer of Collaborative Lab, where she worked with companies and governments to embrace the sharing economy. She built and led Lab’s Shareable Cities practice, designed to help leaders apply the power of collaborative models to catalyze sustainable growth, boost local economies, increase resilience and build community.

Rinne is a Young Global Leader at the World Economic Forum where she heads the Sharing Economy Working Group, and is on the Sharing Economy Advisory Board for Seoul, South Korea. She also stays on the forefront of disruptive business innovation, financial inclusion, law, policy, and micro-entrepreneurship through her roles on the Board of Directors of the World Wide Web Foundation, advisory board of Harvard’s Law and International Development Society (LIDS), and her membership in REX (the Relationship Economy eXpedition).

Rinne has illustrated her thought leadership in publications such as The Guardian, The Washington Post, and the Huffington Post, as well as at the World Economic Forum. She has spoken to Fortune 50 companies, start-ups, governments, universities and foundations around the world including MIT, Emory University, Social Innovation Generation (SiG), Institute for the Future, Etsy and EcoDistricts.

Previously, Rinne was Director of WaterCredit at Water.org where she led innovative initiatives focused on sustainable marketplace creation throughout the developing world. She has also worked as a private lawyer focusing on international finance at Allen & Overy, taught for the International Development Law Organization, and advised numerous social enterprises and investors including Kiva, Grameen and the Bill and Melinda Gates Foundation. Her ground-breaking work in microfinance focused on the role of reputation and social capital as key success drivers, and she was part of the team that was the first to create microfinance vehicles for the poor and unbanked to promote equitable financial inclusion.

Rinne holds a J.D. from Harvard Law School, an M.A. in International Finance and Business Relations from the Fletcher School, and a B.A. in International Studies and Italian from Emory University. She was also a Fulbright Scholar at the European University Institute and a visiting student of politics and economics at Oxford University. She speaks fluent Italian, Spanish and passable French and brings global perspective to her work, which is helped by her travels to 86 countries (at last count) and more than ten years living, working and studying overseas. Don’t compete with her on handstands: you’ll lose.

Brenton CAFFIN

Brenton is an innovative and strategic thinker and regularly presents to and advises national and global organisations, including UN agencies, on a wide range of issues relating to social and public sector innovation. He is an advisor to the Adelaide Festival of Ideas and former board member of the global Social Innovation Exchange and the Institute for Public Administration Australia.

From 2009-2012, Brenton was the founding CEO of The Australian Centre for Social Innovation, and previously held executive positions with the South Australian Department of the Premier and Cabinet, Government Reform Commission and WorkCover. He began his career in the Australian Department of the Prime Minister and Cabinet, later consulting to Australian and British governments on public policy, performance improvement and change management. Brenton was also previously seconded to the Home Office Strategic Policy Team.

Brenton has degrees in economics and international relations and a Master of Public Administration from Flinders University, where his research focused on public sector innovation.

Brodie McCULLOCH

Brodie McCulloch is Managing Director of Social innovation in Western Australia (www.siiwa.org) an organisation that promotes, connects and enables Social Enterprise, Entrepreneurship and Innovation. SiiWA has established a network of social enterprise coworking spaces called Spacecubed (www.spacecubed.com), which has over 450 members from a range of industries.

Brodie will be undertaking a churchill fellowship between May and July to explore models for scaling social enterprise with the first stop being the SIX conference.
Burke TAYLOR

Burke is a principal with Taylor-Harvey Inc. (THI), an international cultural planning consultancy with clients in both private and public sectors. THI focuses on social change through public policy, cultural plans and program development; as well as major cultural event visioning, planning, and producing. (www.taylor-harvey.com)

Burke is also founding Co-director of the University of British Columbia Centre for Cultural Planning and Development, an international centre for education and professional development of cultural policy, planning and development practitioners. (http://cstudies.ubc.ca/cultural-planning-and-development/index.html)

The Vancouver 2010 Olympic and Paralympic Winter Games were the culmination of Burke’s Olympic journey from creation of the Vancouver Bid through delivery of “Canada’s Games” as the VANOC Vice-President for Culture Celebrations and Education, and Executive Producer of the Vancouver 2010 Cultural Olympiad.

Based on the Vancouver 2010 experience, the International Olympic Committee (IOC) commissioned Burke to write the first IOC Guide on Cultural Olympiad, setting out for future Games the Olympic Movement’s cultural public engagement vision and the means to achieve it.

Prior to VANOC, Burke was founding Director of the Office of Cultural Affairs (OCA) for the City of Vancouver. There he coined the term “Creative City” and lead development of Vancouver’s cultural planning, policy, programs, and new cultural facilities.

While at the City, Burke founded the Creative City Network of Canada, a community-of-practice for Canadian municipal staff with arts and cultural development responsibilities. Burke recently keynoted the 10th Anniversary Summit of the CCNC, and the inaugural meeting of the Creative City Network of Japan.

Before joining the City, Burke was a producer of the Olympic Arts Festival in Calgary ('88); Production Director for the Canada Pavilion at Expo 86 in Vancouver, and Expo 85 in Tsukuba, Japan; and an Explorations Program Officer with the Canada Council for the Arts. Burke was also Assistant Director of the Canadian Association in Support of Native People.

Cameron CHARLEBOIS

Cameron is currently President of the Board of Cuso International. He served as Chair of the Board of VSO-Canada prior to the VSO-Canada/CUSO merger, and before that eight years on the Board of the Canadian Council for International Cooperation, five of which as Chair. Prior to that he chaired the Board of Save the Children Canada, and was a member of the Executive Committee of the Save the Children World Alliance.

Cameron is also currently Chair of the Board of the Blue Metropolis Foundation in Montreal, Vice Chair of the Board of the Evergreen Foundation in Toronto, and is a member of the Board of Montreal’s Sacred Heart Hospital where he also chairs the Risk Management Committee.

Cameron works as an urban development specialist in Montreal. He is trained as an architect, has earned the McGill-McConnell Masters of Management for Voluntary Sector Leaders, and was awarded a Doctor of Management degree by Hertfordshire University in the UK in November, 2009. He lives in downtown Montreal.
Carla CIPOLLA

Carla Cipolla has been involved since 2004 in projects on design for social innovation in Europe, Africa and in Brazil where she is now associate professor of the UFRJ - Federal University of Rio de Janeiro / COPPE - Institute for Graduate Studies and Research in Engineering.

She is coordinator of the UFRJ/Coppe DESIS Lab, which is one of the founding members of the DESIS Network. Her research and design activities in this group are focused on design for social innovation, emphasizing international cooperative and comparative projects of relevance to specific Brazilian issues.

The international projects she is involved in include: TRANSIT (Transformative Social Innovation Theory), a European Community funded (FP7) research initiative which involves twelve separate research institutes from across Europe and Latin-America, and aims to develop a theory of transformative social innovation by studying how networks of social entrepreneurs and families of social innovation projects contribute to systemic societal change; and IFC (Informal, Formal, Collaborative), a program of activities involving DESIS Labs in Africa, Latin-America and in India, which aims to capitalize on the rich social and human resources that exist within underserved communities, where processes of dynamic change are happening despite their resource and service constrained environments.

Carla was awarded her Phd in Design at Politecnico di Milano in 2007, where she started up a research and design activity on the interpersonal relational qualities of social innovations. Social innovations are analysed in terms of a new service model: “relational services”, which present interaction patterns characterised by mutual trust and intimacy between participants and are able to offer alternatives to standard or mainstream service provisions.

Cassie ROBINSON

Cassie is a Director of the Point People, a network whose tag line is “Where Worlds Meet”.

They work in a way that draws their collective intelligence together, from across different sectors, to look at social and cultural issues systemically. Cassie specialises in strategic design, open innovation and networks, and likes to bring profile and ambition to things she believes in. A decade ago Cassie had gained a 1st Class degree in fashion, was working at Marie Claire magazine in New York, and then co-founded her own design enterprise for which she was awarded by Nesta in 2004 as a Creative Pioneer. In the last 9 years she turned her design practice toward social design instead and gained an MSc in Applied Positive Psychology specialising in collective efficacy, strengths based approaches and behaviour change. Alongside working on a range of projects for clients such as Government Digital Service (where she currently works part-time) Ravensbourne (she was the producer of www.wearablefutures.co), Nominet Trust, Nesta, 100% Open and Hub Westminster, she sits on the Board of Snook and the Advisory Board for Social Spaces, and produces her own projects too.

She was a winner of Artangel and the Evening Standard’s Ideas For London with her concept for LondonScape, a project to explore how we can use data to show our interconnectedness in a city and build empathy and systems consciousness by doing so. Her DataStore project won the Urban Prototyping Festival as an idea for building urban resilience and was shown at Digital Shoreditch and the V&A. Supported by Intel, a second version of the Datastore is about to go on tour, exploring ways to build data literacy and data capability. Her other area of interest is intimacy and sexuality and she created the first Intimacy Lab at the Barbican this Summer which is now being developed into a venture called Intimate Objects.

Cathy GLOVER

After almost 20 years with the non-profit sector, Cathy joined Suncor Energy Inc. to manage both the Suncor Energy Foundation and the Corporate Community Investments programs in early 2001. Her responsibilities include the strategic management of Suncor’s community investment and involvement programs including grants and employee programs in Canada and internationally.

In this role, Cathy works closely with groups and individuals who are impacted by Suncor’s operations to build positive, long-term relationships that encourage collective action and lead to the development of sustainable and resilient communities through social innovation. Acting as a catalyst, Cathy and her team are bringing together unlikely partners to address complex social issues and transformative change.

César BUENADICHA

César is a Senior Specialist at the Inter-American Development Bank (IDB) in Washington, DC (Multilateral Investment Fund unit). In his work at the IDB, he has led a variety of programs in social innovation, crowdfunding, social entrepreneurship, social impact bonds, micro-franchising, educational loans, and local economic development in countries throughout Latin America. He holds a PhD in Economics (UNED, Spain) with the dissertation entitled “Scalability Analysis in the identification and design of Development Projects”; in addition, he holds professional advanced degrees in Law and Economics from the University of Comillas (ICADE E-3, Spain). Before joining the IDB, he worked for ten years in Honduras, El Salvador and Bolivia in microenterprise development and employment programs through Spanish and Dutch National Development Agencies. Prior to entering the development field, César worked as a lawyer in the private sector for Clifford Chance Law Firm.

Charles TSAI

Charles Tsai is the Director of Learning Networks for Ashoka Canada. He leads a three year initiative to engage 30 colleges and universities in strengthening support for changemaking and social innovation. Through a series of national initiatives - including events, campaigns and special projects - Learning Networks seeks to catalyze collaboration and learning across innovation ecosystems. Charles also leads efforts to create a new knowledge currency (in the form of digital badges) for Canada's innovation ecosystem.

A former reporter and producer for CNN, Charles ventured into the social sector in 2005 when he started Global Youth Fund, a charity based in Vancouver. In 2008, he joined Ashoka to oversee global campaigns supporting young social entrepreneurs. He has mentored hundreds of young changemakers through Global Youth Fund and Ashoka’s Youth Venture. Charles writes about social innovation at SocialCreatives.org and Huffington Post.
Chené SWART

Chené Swart is an author, speaker, coach, teacher and consultant of Narrative practices and ideas at Transformations, a consulting company that provides services to businesses, communities, and educational institutions across the world. In her work she invites and enables participants to re-write and re-author the stories of their lives as individuals, communities and organizations where they feel stuck or trapped or where the stories they continuously tell are thin conclusions that do not honour the gifts, values, knowledges of these groups or individuals. These alternative narratives open the possibility to live into a preferred future that invite personal and communal agency, new ways of doing and being, and transformed lives. If you are curious about Narrative ideas and practices you can visit Chené’s website www.transformations.co.za or read her book, Re-authoring the World: The Narrative Lens and Practices for Organisations, Communities and Individuals.

Cheryl ROSE

Cheryl is Director of Social Innovation Generation at the University of Waterloo (SiG@Waterloo). Prior to entering the post-secondary field, Cheryl Rose gained professional experience in capacity development within the community sector. Her extensive background in both local and national leadership initiatives enhanced her role as the Citizenship and Leadership Educator and Community Service-Learning Specialist on the University of Guelph campus, where she developed a number of national award-winning programs focused on social change. She was the founding Executive Director of the Canadian Alliance for Community Service-Learning, encouraging effective teaching and research partnerships between academics and other sectors across the country. In 2007, she joined Social Innovation Generation (SiG) at the University of Waterloo, as the Director of Partnership and Program Development for this unique national initiative. A key leader within this collaborative, she works closely with Dr. Frances Westley and the SiG national partners for strategic program, network and communication development related to knowledge mobilization on social innovation in Canada. This includes working on the ongoing design and delivery of the Graduate Diploma in Social Innovation; as the Associate Director, she oversees the program recruitment, evaluation and teaches the core curriculum on strategy development for social innovation.

Cheryl is a proud mother of three young adults and a new grandmother to a beautiful little boy – they inspire her to work with others to make a positive difference in our world on behalf of next generations.

Chris SCHUCHMANN

Chris Schuchmann (24) is almost graduated in Economic Geography and currently working on his final thesis about the Social Entrepreneurial Ecosystem in Amsterdam and how it stimulates new social enterprises. During his study he worked on all sorts of side activities. In his master year he developed a new learning concept to stimulate social entrepreneurial skills under Dutch students, which he also currently develops as a social enterprise. He also worked as a freelance consultant for SAMEEN, an organisation that helps companies and governments with challenges concerning energy transition. One of the projects I worked on was a marketing plan how a renewable energy company could expand further in the Netherlands. In my free time I’m a passionate athlete and besides my study I rowed on national levels where my crew was Dutch student lightweight champion and had a second place at the European student championships in Moscow.

Christoph KALETKA

Christoph Kaletka is a senior researcher and management board member at Sozialforschungsstelle (sfs), Scientific Institute of Technische Universität Dortmund. Sozialforschungsstelle Dortmund is focusing on the theoretical foundations of socio-scientific innovation research and its practical implementation. In addition to applied and basic research, sfs provides expert advice in a number of areas such as new production concepts and network management, continuing education and training, introduction and evaluation of quality systems.
Christoph’s main fields of work are social innovation, e-inclusion, and (European) labour and employment policy. Current topics in research and consultation also include the implementation of lifelong learning networks and the professionalization of digital learning centres. Christoph is coordinating the FP7 large-scale project “Social innovation - Driving Force of Social Change (SI-DRIVE)”, aimed at extending knowledge about social innovation by integrating theories and research methodologies, undertaking a European and global mapping of SI, and ensuring relevance for policy makers and practitioners through in-depth analyses and case studies in different policy fields.

Clare WIGHTMAN

Clare is one of a passionate and talented group of people who work for a charity in Coventry and Warwickshire called Grapevine. Relationships are at the heart of their work.

The help that charities and services give to people can be one of two things: it can be an important first step to a stronger life or it can be a revolving door. Clare has wanted to make sure that Grapevine offers the first, not the second. She believes it makes all the difference when we have people around us who can help us to get over problems, and not feel like we’re stuck on our own. But the people health and social care services see most have no one to turn to when things get tough for them. Clare’s particular interest is working in a way that develops and connects networks of local people for mutual help and support.

Clare is inspired by the pioneers of citizen advocacy and those who still hold its flame in Savannah Georgia, USA. She is also inspired and sustained by the people she works with and the people Grapevine serves.

Clare likes to seek out the unexpected teacher. She likes to work people to people, without templates, policies or processes – as much as she can get away with it!

Claudia VALLADARES

David ROCHE

David Roche has been an effective social innovator for decades. In the 1970’s he was a co-founder of The Childcare Switchboard and Single Parent Resource Center of San Francisco. A hippie at that time, he did not realize that the Center would soon receive Ford Foundation funding and become a national model. In the 80’s, David was a cofounder of the first hospital-based massage therapy program in the United States at Pacific Presbyterian Hospital in San Francisco, which also became a national model. In the 90’s he embarked on a pioneering career as a performer, which is how he has made his living for almost 25 years. Now, in addition to performing, storytelling, public speaking and being a published author, he is co-artistic director of Realwheels Theatre Company in Vancouver. David’s vision: to change the world’s perception of what constitutes human beauty. His two mottos:
“Just because it’s hopeless, that’s no excuse,” and (with a nod to Gramsci) “Think negative, act positive”. He and his wife Marlena live on the Sunshine Coast of British Columbia.

Formerly he was North America’s first Drug Policy Coordinator at the City of Vancouver where he worked for 22 years. He is the author of Vancouver’s groundbreaking Four Pillars Drug Strategy, which called for new approaches to drug-related problems based on public health principles and the appropriate regulation of all psychoactive substances. In 2007 he received the Kaiser Foundation National Award of Excellence in Public Policy in Canada. In 2009 he was awarded the Richard Dennis Drug Peace Award for Outstanding Achievement in the Field of Drug Policy Reform by the Drug Policy Alliance in the United States. He is an Associate on the LSE Ideas International Drug Policy Project and a member of the board of the Pivot Legal Society. His current major project is working to create the conditions for a major breakthrough in international drug policy at the UN Special Session on Drugs in 2016.

Donna Thomson began her career as an actor, director and teacher. But in 1988, when her son Nicholas was born with severe disabilities, Donna embarked on her second career as a disability activist. A veteran of numerous local committees promoting inclusion for her son, Donna became interested in how families, communities and governments can work together to find new ways of supporting our most vulnerable citizens.

Donna is an author, consultant and speaker on issues relating to caregiving. Donna uses her personal family experience with giving care to her son and to her mother as the basis for provoking a public discussion on the worth of caregiving across generations.

In her bestselling book, “The Four Walls of My Freedom: Lessons I’ve Learned From a Life of Caregiving” (2010 in hardcover and now, an updated paperback - House of Anansi Press), Donna Thomson uses the Nobel Prize winning Laureate Amartya Sen’s ‘Capability Approach’ as a lens for re-imagining how vulnerable citizens and their families can have a life that they value and be supported in doing so by their communities and their governments.

Donna is an active blogger on her page “The Caregivers’ Living Room” (www.donnathomson.com) in addition to writing for magazines and journals on caregiving themes. Donna is the Special Advisor for Caregiving at TYZE Personal Networks and offers training in maximizing the sharing and coordination of care using this online tool. She teaches families best practice in advocating for care... through her Advocacy School workshop “How to Know What You Need and Get What You Want”.

Donna is married to James Wright, the former High Commissioner for Canada in the UK. Jim and Donna have two children and live in Ottawa, Canada.

Graham DUNCAN

My name is Graham Duncan and I’m the Director of St Mary’s Community Centre, working in the inner city of Sheffield, UK. I’m interested in asset based approaches, in action research, in the power of expectation and how to create community without money. My research interests are around the empowering impact of narratives, and in particular around Appreciative Inquiry as a tool for both empowerment and critical thinking. Much of this work has been with very excluded Pakistani women in Sheffield and has been recently accepted for publication by Action Research journal. I am currently working on a chapter for the new edition of the Handbook of Action Research. In previous roles I have worked with homeless people, substance misusers and ex-offenders. Much of my current practice is focussed around Appreciative Inquiry, the development of TimeBanking as a way of engaging with disadvantaged people and the recovery model in mental health.

Ken is a Social Entrepreneur, and spearheaded the Urban Matters social venture platform (www.urbanmatters.ca) as a means to develop a new approaches to supporting the community-focused NGO sector with leadership, guidance and technical expertise that has historically been out of reach. While still in its infancy, Urban Matters is shaking the foundations of traditional capitalism and traditional philanthropy by developing sustainable collaborations and relational business models that achieve shared gains for both the firm AND its clients. Urban Matters solicits unlikely collaborations between sectors and actors with a focus on outcomes and impact. Urban Matters also serves as the companies’ innovation hub and is actively developing its new socially impactful business model in real time.
Ken is also a principal/owner at Urban Systems (www.urbansystems.ca), a 40 year old consultancy that specializes in community development across Western Canada. After a decade working as a community engineering consultant, then another 5 years as a Managing Partner and as a Leader of both Urban Systems and the Urban Systems Foundation, Ken has more recently been focused on igniting the spirit of social innovation through the Company through Urban Matters.

Ken actively volunteers as the Co-Chair of the BC Partners for Social Impact www.socialimpactpartners.ca, a Provincial scale network of peers, influencers and volunteers committed to the cause of social systems change in British Columbia. The BC Partners for Social Impact have been instrumental in developing enabling policy and legislative changes aimed at reducing barriers and nurturing a flourishing social innovation ecosystem in BC; such as establishing the first hybrid business incorporation model in Canada, the Community Contribution Company. Ken is also the President of the Kelowna Community Development Society www.kcds.info; a local non-profit society dedicated to supporting aging adults with developmental disabilities, and as a Director with the Project Build Society www.projectbuild.ca; an innovative model to deliver affordable market housing options to families.

Kimberly NORDBYE

I am a daughter, sister, wife, friend, colleague and mother of two boys. I am passionate about the role of business in community development and the power of collective impact. My favourite quote is “be comfortable with the discomfort!”. I began my career in community investment with the Canada Trust Friends of the Environment Foundation in Vancouver back in the late ‘90s. I moved to the Suncor Energy Foundation (http://www.suncor.com/en/community/297.aspx) in 2000 in Calgary. I transferred with Suncor Energy (www.suncor.com) to Fort McMurray, Alberta in 2004, working in stakeholder relations and regulatory consultation until late 2011. In November 2011, I was seconded by Suncor to the Social Prosperity Wood Buffalo project (www.socialprosperity.ca) for two years. Working closely with local stakeholders, we focused on building capacity in the social profit (nonprofit) sector through social innovation, collaboration & collective impact. The project is ongoing until 2015 and although my secondment finished in December 2013, continue to support the initiative through the project steering committee. As of January 2014, I am back at Suncor in community investment working on cultivating community leaders and building capacity in the communities where Suncor operates.

Kine NORDSTOKKA

Kine is the Coordinator of Programmes and Partnership at the Social Innovation Exchange (SIX). Her role is to support SIX’s global network for social innovation. She works on design and delivery of new and existing programmes, strengthening SIX’s relationship with its partners and making sure SIX is useful for its members, and introducing SIX to new friends around the world. She is also involved in three consortiums funded by the European Commission that SIX is currently leading or part of; The Social Innovation Europe is building a community for social innovation in Europe and creating an online magazine and hub for European social innovation; TRANSITION is supporting the scaling up of social innovation across Europe, and ENGAGED is encouraging and sharing innovation in healthy and active ageing.

Kine has got a Masters in NGO and Development Management and Bachelor in International Development.
Kristin WOLFF, thinker, doer, aspiring rainmaker.

Kristin has worked in the jobs (un-jobs?) space since Dan Pink’s Free Agent Nation knocked her socks off over a decade ago.

A longtime member of the “gig” economy herself, Kristin serves as dot-connector and adjunct researcher for Social Policy Research Associates (Oakland, CA), runs thinkers-and-doers (a small business in Portland, OR), blogs for WEadership.org, and is pursuing a “DIY second masters”, a combination of formal, informal, and experiential learning in social innovation, communications and technology—all in service of making work work better for more people and communities. A four-time alum of SIX Social Innovation School (Singapore, Poland, Australia, S. Korea), Kristin is working on: Innovation and open government with SPR colleague Vinz Koller and a network of trusted advisors; and hatchthefuture.org, Portland’s new community innovation lab and co-working space (with Springboard Innovation); and a whole bunch of projects relating to work, learning and local economies built around people and purpose, and not just profit.

Kristin does travel, but is most at home in Portland where she and her partner Robert compost, ride bikes, and drink amazing coffee (in Kristin’s case, de-caf).

Kye yul LEE

Kye yul, Lee is a deputy director of innovation coordinating team in the social innovation division of Seoul Metropolitan Government.

He has in charge of finding innovate and creative projects. He has contributed to lead private sectors and enterprises with a consultation between those and SMG. He has specially taken an important responsibility for the Sharing city of Seoul to solve the economic, social, and environmental matters. He has encouraged the private sectors in sharing activities at the head of public fields.

Lauren DOBELL

A peripatetic childhood had engendered a chronic case of wanderlust by Lauren’s university years, during which she focused on national liberation movements, governance and post-independence reconstruction. A system of alternating between hemispheres was eventually perfected, permitting – during one halcyon period – seven consecutive summers. Along the way she has misplaced much luggage (both literal and metaphorical), countless pairs of sunglasses, quite often her better judgment and sometimes her sense of perspective.

An eclectic background, encompassing episodes of international development, journalism, academia and public policy-shaping (with Canadian Councils – on learning, unity, international cooperation – as an oddly recurring theme), has taught her a great respect for acknowledged failures of every scale as a powerful source of learning, a catalyst for innovation, and the subject matter of the best anecdotes, in unpanicked retrospect.

A fan of its leading-edge practices in values-based banking, community impact investment and groundbreaking social finance, Lauren was delighted in 2011 to join Vancity’s Community Investment Team as Director of Partnerships.

Moreover, she holds a Master in Business Engineering from Brussels’ Solvay Business School, as well as Master of Public Administration from Columbia University.

Marlieke KIEBOOM

I am Marlieke and I am a researcher with Kennisland Amsterdam, Netherlands. Kennisland is an action-oriented, independent think tank in support of innovative practices. My red threaded question is: how can we make knowledge useful to support people’s innovative practices? In daily practice this means I design new (research) methodologies, for example a new evaluation methodology to support social innovation practices (dynamic evaluation). I also develop new learning experiences (like Lab2, Wicked Series). My thematic fields of interest are: education, governance and politics, while I have a background in anthropology, international development and cheese making. Looking forward to your contributions at SIX!

Mary Clare ZAK

Mary Clare is a long time public servant and has worked for all three levels of government and in various departments and ministries, as well as the non-profit sector. Her experience has included fields such as immigration, multiculturalism and anti-racism, programs for women and people with disabilities, children’s rights policy, and crime prevention through social development. Mary Clare began working at the City in 2007 as Director of Social Planning and is currently Managing Director, Social Policy and Projects and in 2013 lead the city’s response to the Province of BC’s Missing Women Commission of Inquiry through a Task Force on Sex Work and Sexual Exploitation. Currently, her key priorities include the creation of an integrated social sustainability strategy for Vancouver that aims to create a “Healthy City for All” in partnership with a range of leaders from all levels of government, business and non-profit sectors, as well as a Mayor’s Task Force on Mental Health and Addictions that builds on principles of the City's Four Pillars initiative. Overall, Mary Clare has a keen interest in supporting social innovation, including collective impact and social enterprise that will enable the City’s social, economic, and ecological goals to be realized. Currently she is also a part time Master's Student at SFU (Graduate Liberal Studies) where she is exploring the relationship between historical perspectives on ‘wellness’ and ‘being’ with current critical social issues, including income inequality and our basic human need for belonging.

Meena NALLAINATHAN

Meena works at Social Innovation Generation (SiG) National in Toronto. As a freelance journalist, she has reported on Sri Lankan politics, the affects of climate change on women’s health, media coverage of Darfur, and the cost of Canadian immigration. She travels to Sri Lanka as often as she can to visit her (now) 100-year-old grandmother and to gather research for a book on the post-war environment. She is particularly interested in the artistic and spiritual activism needed to rebuild a community brutalized by war, in a context where there is very little space to speak out about labour rights, women’s rights, the environment, corruption, and where the judiciary, agriculture, access to land, and more, are controlled by the military. She is also deeply interested in what it takes to re-think how Canadian institutions can access the tremendous talent and diversity of perspectives among newcomers. There seem to be a lot of programs in place to help immigrants, but in reality, many are restrictive and not very accessible. How can Canada provide better tools to empower individuals struggling to build a new life here and promote a cultural shift within our hierarchical systems towards inclusiveness? How do we proactively address systemic racism?

Mélanie BISSON

Mélanie is the coordinator of Quebec Social Innovation Network (RQIS). For the last eight years, RQIS has been engaged in sharing experience and knowledge to help make social innovation an essential force for sustainable development in Quebec. Nora VAN DER LINDEN

I work at Kennisland, a ‘think and do tank’ for social innovation in Amsterdam, the Netherlands. My work focuses on education projects mostly, where my main activities are coaching and training change makers, experimenting with new concepts at schools, and collaborate with students, teachers and management to innovate and improve Dutch schools. I’m also involved in the Social Innovation Safari, an international learning program that finds new approaches for real life complex social issues. I have a background in sociology and philosophy of science, studied in Amsterdam and Montreal, and worked at the the University of Amsterdam before. My main interests are education, inequality and power, and how to stimulate motion in difficult environments on different levels.

Pablo ESPINOSA

Director of Revista Innovación Social (Social Innovation Magazine) written for social change agents, co-founder of Impact Hub Bogotá, practitioner and co-founder of the first community of Art of Hosting in Colombia, facilitator of participatory processes. I studied mathematics and philosophy. Post-modernist interested in social-impact initiatives which challenge social institutions as a means of renewing relations between stakeholders. Inspired by Foucault, Sartre, Beethoven, Dali, cubism.

Paul LACERTE

Paul Lacerte is the Provincial Executive Director of the BC Association of Aboriginal Friendship Centres, a position he has held for the past 18 years. He is a member of the Cariboo Clan and a citizen of the Nadleh Whut’en Carrier First Nation in north central British Columbia.

The BCAAFC represents the largest Aboriginal social service infrastructure in British Columbia and is engaged in social and community development for Aboriginal peoples.

Paul is a member of the Board of Directors for the Vancouver Foundation and serves as a Lead Aboriginal representative on key Provincial initiatives including the Government Non-Profit Initiative (GNPI). He currently sits as one of the Canadian representatives at the United Nations Permanent Forum for Indigenous Peoples in New York.

As a member of the BC Social Innovation Council, Paul assisted in developing their Action Plan Recommendations to Maximise Social Innovation in BC. The Council focused on supporting initiatives that develop the social finance and enterprise marketplace, encourage greater collaboration across sectors and improve BC’s ability to solve its social challenges. Paul’s key recommendation was to foster greater partnership between the private and public sectors with Aboriginal stakeholders and organizations to ‘develop a targeted strategy to build social entrepreneurship and social innovation capacity in BC First Nations and Aboriginal communities.’

He also spearheaded the development of the Five by Five Aboriginal Jobs strategy, anchored within BC’s Friendship Centres, that aims to employ five thousand Aboriginal people over five years. This strategy highlights innovative ways of looking at meaningful and sustainable employment through the supported development of social enterprise and pioneering the creation and implementation Social Impact Bond in BC around employment services for Aboriginal people living in urban Centres. Paul asserts that ‘job readiness’ is not simply resume and interview skills, it is a broad spectrum of supports and services, anchored in culture, that develop the skills necessary for long-term employability and self-sufficiency.

Peter HANNING

I am a Programme Manager working for two government agencies in the New Zealand Government that deliver social and economic services (the Ministry of Social Development, and the Ministry of Business, Innovation and Employment). My role for the last four years has been to support the establishment of multi-agency programmes and deliver improved outcomes for citizens living in Auckland, New Zealand. I have a background of project, programme and change management, starting in IT projects, and have worked across the public and private sectors.

Key areas of focus for me are helping the programmes we have established in Auckland and the broader public service explore innovative solutions to our public sector challenges, and applying the conditions of collective impact to delivery of large scale positive impacts for and with communities.

Peter RAMSDEN

Peter Ramsden (UK) is a geographer specialised in entrepreneurship, regional, urban and local development, social inclusion and social innovation at national and EU level.

Raheel MOHAMMED

Raheel Mohammed is the founder and director of Maslaha and has recently been profiled as one of Britain’s 50 New Radicals in The Observer newspaper and by Nesta for pioneering creative change to some of society’s most difficult issues.

He is a regular speaker at international conferences and events, most recently the World Islamic Economic Forum on social entrepreneurship and social innovation, New York Department of Education and in Oman on social innovation. He also appears regularly on BBC Radio.

He has created award-winning resources which tackle inequalities in areas such as health, education, criminal justice, aspiration, and identity. For example Maslaha’s award-winning health work is now used locally, nationally, and internationally and seen as examples of good practice and innovative in its use of technology and diverse networks.

Importantly, his work starts at the “edges” of society, communities and groups of people suffering from a particular social need and the informal networks that are a vital glue in these communities and neighbourhoods. It then permeates into public institutions and the public imagination such as doctors’ clinics and hospitals, schools and universities, museums and galleries, and government departments and local councils, social media and mainstream media.

Raheel has also curated exhibitions in partnership with the British Council. They are currently touring internationally and have been hosted in 10 countries... and several European Capital City of Culture programmes. The exhibitions explore the exchange of ideas and goods across societies and time, as well as illustrating how public spaces have been shaped and imagined by artists.

Maslaha’s work around identity such as www.islamandfeminism.org has an international audience and has received substantial coverage in the mainstream media and social media in the UK, Europe, Asia, the US, South America and the Gulf Arab states.

Raheel helped set up and was the Assistant Director at the award-winning Crossway Foundation, advising on and initiating education programmes designed to raise awareness of Middle East and Muslim cultures through art.

He also helped to launch Edge of Arabia, a touring exhibition of contemporary Saudi art which has exhibited internationally including the Venice Biennale.

In a previous life he was an award-winning journalist.

Shawn SMITH
Shawn Smith is an Adjunct Professor and Founding Director of RADIUS (RADical Ideas, Useful to Society) at the Beedie School of Business, Simon Fraser University, and has developed and taught a number of social entrepreneurship classes and programs internationally. He is co-founder of several other organizations including Global Agents for Change, Education Generation (now The School Fund), the Equilibrium Partnership and Radiant Carbon, and speaks and consults regularly on social entrepreneurship and innovation. With professional experience touching on 5 continents, his work has been featured by the United Nations and a wide variety of media outlets. Shawn completed his MBA at the University of Oxford as a Skoll Scholar in Social Entrepreneurship.

Simon JOHNSON
Simon leads AdviceUK’s systems change work. AdviceUK is a network of some 800 NGOs that provide advice to members of the public on social welfare law, many delivering advice as part of a wide range of community and social support. When the state or other services let people down – usually the most excluded and vulnerable – they turn to advice organisations for help. This means that AdviceUK members represent an invaluable source of evidence of system failure.

Simon works with leaders in NGOs and local authorities to understand services from the perspective of the people who use them; to identify the causes of system failure and to redesign services that are people-shaped, recognising the complex realities of real people's lives. This approach challenges current commissioning and procurement practice and rejects industrial thinking such as “economies of scale” in favour of demand-led services whose purpose is “help people lead a good life”.

Simon has worked in paid and unpaid frontline, management and trustee roles in the NGO sector for almost 30 years, and has extensive experience of cross-sector partnership working. Amongst other things, his current role has taught him that the things that organisations are required to do “to demonstrate effectiveness and value” have exactly the opposite effect – they stop frontline workers doing what matters for people and push services to focus on ‘making the numbers’ rather than doing the right thing.

Simon TUCKER
Simon Tucker advises social innovators, governments and corporates around the world on innovation and systems change. He is currently obsessed with how to achieve the right balance between experimentation and entrepreneurship on the one hand, and systems transformation and large scale change on the other.

After may years working largely with small scale start up ventures, Simon is currently playing a leading role in two collective impact initiatives. As Chair of the West London Whole Systems Integrated Care for the Elderly initiative he is leading a co-production process to create a patient-centred and integrated approach to care for the elderly including pooling GBP90m/USD150m annual spend across various local health and social care providers and exploring the potential for an innovation lab or fund. As adviser to Save the Children he is working with University of Manchester and four neighbourhoods across England to establish children’s communities that are doubly holistic (across the lifespan and across sectors) and also include an innovation fund, drawing inspiration from the Harlem Children’s Zone, Strive Partnership and others.

Simon is Deputy Chair of NHS West London, a public body responsible for commissioning healthcare for 225,000 local residents. Simon is a former Chief Executive of the Young Foundation, a leading centre for social innovation, combining research, creation of new ventures and collaborative initiatives. He is a co-founder of the New Charter Free School in East Dulwich; Studio Schools Trust; the Social Innovation Exchange and 2nd Change Education and was part of the founding team of UnLtd – The Foundation for Social Entrepreneurs. He is a trustee of LankellyChase Foundation.

So Jung RIM

So Jung is a Summer School Coordinator for the Social Innovation eXchange, SIX, an international network for social innovators. She worked on SIX Summer School 2013 in Seoul and is currently coordinating SIX Vancouver 2014. So Jung is currently setting up a start-up team called Spreadi, which aims to help exchange of social sector knowledge between Asia and Europe.

So Jung is an Associate at Social Life. So Jung worked on Project Stentor this year – a pilot project to build a prototype open-source, comparative city dashboard. She has also worked on a series of action planning workshops in Brixton at Social Life. So Jung has previously worked at the Young Foundation on a research project called What Works? Finding new ways to make social change, a global study geared at surfacing and spreading social innovation methods, with deeper regional studies in Southern and East Africa, and East and South East Asia. So Jung has also worked at the Hope Institute, a social innovation centre in South Korea, where she was the project lead for the Social Designer School, an education programme empowering ordinary citizens to turn their learning and ideas into practice.

So Jung has an MSc in Social Policy and Development at the London School of Economics and Political Science and a Bachelor’s degree in Economics at the Instituto Tecnológico Autónomo de México (ITAM).

Stephen HUDDART

Stephen Huddart is President and CEO of The J. W. McConnell Family Foundation in Montreal, which has played a leading role in developing and supporting social innovation and impact investing in Canada as a founding partner and funder of Social Innovation Generation (SiG). McConnell’s newest program is Cities for People.

Stephen’s career spans several fields and includes leadership positions in the private, public and non-profit sectors. He has led social enterprises, and been a documentary filmmaker, humane educator, geophysical observer, museum curator and natural food store manager.

He serves on the advisory boards of Philanthropic Foundations Canada, the McGill Initiative in the Social Economy, and the Canada Research Chair in Community Sustainability.

He has a Masters of Management degree from McGill.

Sunkyung HAN

Sunkyung Han is a co-founder of C.(Cdot) which is the organization to promote social innovation through connecting people and knowledge. Based on convictions that the connectivity can intensify the flow of social innovation across the world, it provides training program for field activists and consulting services for social innovation organizations and social business groups that want to set up the strategy for international exchange and replicate themselves in Asia regions. She has been working as a network catalyst and connector with the belief that building a friendship beyond borders and collaborating together can bring about social change.

Before founding the C., she coordinated research projects related to community issues and urban regeneration as well as social innovation in general while she worked in the Hope Institute. She was also in charge of international projects, creating a platform for Asian Social Innovators, ANIS (Asia NGO Innovation Summit, 2010-2012) and organizing several international conferences in terms of social innovation.

She also is working as a member of inaugural committee 'GSEA (Global Social Economy Association) and a Asia Region Coordinator. In addition, she also helps organizations and local governments as an adviser in terms of introducing and bringing global initiatives in and outside Korea.

Tamara CONNELL

Tamara has been working in the sustainability field since she began her Master’s degree in Strategic Leadership towards Sustainability (MSLS) at the Blekinge Institute of Technology (BTH) in Sweden, back in 2005. After completion of her degree, she spent one year working with the Vancity Group to enhance their sustainability performance and leadership. After that, she returned to Sweden to join the teaching team at BTH, eventually holding the role as MSLS Programme Director for several years. She stewarded about 250 talented graduates through their studies in Sweden, and has taught around the world, including in Canada, USA, Mexico, Costa Rica, France, China, and on the Peace Boat’s 74th global voyage.

Tamara’s background is diverse, but for her, nothing compares to teaching, coaching, and mentoring within educational settings. Through facilitated trainings, games, simulations, and workshops, she helps people to see the interconnectedness of the world and our underlying mental models. She enjoys subtly (and not so subtly) pulling leaders out of their comfort zones to see what they can really become.

Tamara grew up in various places around British Columbia, and now calls Vancouver home. She holds a Bachelor of Science degree in Environmental Planning from UNBC, and a Master’s in Strategic Leadership towards Sustainability from BTH. In her spare time she enjoys traveling, exploring new eateries, meditating, and helping to connect people and projects within her networks.

In her current role at The Natural Step Canada, Tamara is responsible for overseeing all of the Learning Programs, the Sustainability Literacy Project, and the organization’s communications and branding.

Tamara VROOMAN

Tamara Vrooman’s passion and vision for delivering strong financial outcomes, social inclusion and environmental performance make her an inspiring leader. As President and Chief Executive Officer of Vancity, Canada’s largest community credit union, she is leading Vancity to fulfill its vision of redefining wealth.

Tamara’s leadership is focused on transforming the banking system by using a co-operative business model to build a just, compassionate and sustainable society. Her belief that financial institutions are key to improving the quality of life for current and future generations drive Vancity’s participation on the Social Finance Task Force and the Global Alliance for Banking on Values. Under Tamara’s leadership, Vancity’s $17.1 billion in assets is invested in increasing the well-being of its members and building sustainable communities.
With Tamara at the helm, Vancity was designated North America’s first carbon-neutral financial institution and the largest organization in British Columbia with a living wage policy. A living wage is an income a family needs to cover basic living expenses.

Before joining Vancity, Tamara served as Deputy Minister of Finance for B.C. from 2004 to mid-2007, and as Secretary to the Treasury Board. She oversaw two AAA credit rating upgrades, managed annual $100 billion borrowing and cash requirements, and developed a $36 billion fiscal plan.

Tamara lends her voice and leadership experience to human-focused issues, from living wage to early childhood education. She has been recognized for her leadership with multiple awards and honours and is a frequent speaker at local, national and international conferences and symposia.

Tara MAHONEY

Tata is Co-founder and Creative Director of Gen Why Media.

Before completing her master degree in media production from Ryerson University, Tata worked in the non-profit sector as Community Outreach Coordinator for a non-profit film school, Pull Focus and campaigned for the Sierra Club of Canada and Greenpeace at their Headquarters in Washington D.C.

Along with environmental activism, social justice issues have always been important to Tata – illustrated most clearly in her first documentary film, ForGive. Tata wrote, directed and produced ForGive, a film that follows National Chief Phil Fontaine to the Vatican to seek an apology from Pope Benedict XVI for the culture damaged caused by Indian Residential Schools.

Having completed the Civic Engagement and Dialogue program at Simon Fraser University in 2012, Tara’s desire to innovate public participation models led her to use media and event production to shift citizens from consumers to active shapers of the decisions that shape their lives.

Tara’s has become a cultural commentator in generational issues, appearing in the media and as a keynote speaker representing the Generation Y perspective.

As of September 2013 she will be doing her PhD in Communications at Simon Fraser University, while continuing an active role at Gen Why Media.

Tim DRAIMIN

Tim Draimin, Executive Director of Social Innovation Generation

I have been working with a national partnership fast-tracking the strengthening of Canada’s social innovation ecosystem. From SiG’s experience combining the focused intentionality of a diverse group with the power of network strategies, we can see how a international network like SIX will be an even more vital accelerant for the global movement through the generative power of sowing intellectual and social capital.

I have been fortunate to have been involved in social change initiatives throughout my career, ranging from international human rights work, citizen track diplomacy, experiments with policy co-creation, building the “missing middle” infrastructure for budding social innovators (platforms for philanthropy and simplifying the scaling of multi-sectoral social innovations). My current focuses are supporting the take-up of social innovation capabilities by the public and the corporate sectors.
Tim ZAK

Tim Zak is an Associate Teaching Professor and Director of the Institute for Social Innovation at Carnegie Mellon University, and has spent over 25 years leading global organizations and advising executives in the public, private, and not-for-profit sectors. He was the founding CEO of the Social Innovation Accelerator, a private operating foundation established in 2002 to provide seed capital and direct support for ventures focused on new, financially-sustainable ways to address vexing social problems. In addition to working for IBM, McKinsey, and two start-up companies, Professor Zak has been on the boards of a number of social innovation organizations including the Social Enterprise Alliance and The Australian Centre for Social Innovation.

Tina DACIN

Tina is the E. Marie Shantz Chaired Professor of Strategy and Organizational Behavior in the Queen’s School of Business at Queen’s University. She is the Director of the Queen’s School of Business Centre for Responsible Leadership. Tina’s research interests include cultural heritage and traditions, institutional change, social entrepreneurship, and strategic collaboration. Her work has been published in leading management journals and she has served in a variety of editorial positions for these journals. Tina received her doctorate from the University of Toronto and prior to joining Queen’s University, she spent nine years at Texas A & M University. She has most recently been a Visiting Professor for several years at the Judge Business School at Cambridge, Kellogg School of Management, Northwestern University, and the Indian School of Business in Hyderabad, India.

Tonya SURMAN

Tonya Surman is a social entrepreneur, community animator and mayhem choreographer. With a passion for bringing life to world-changing projects, Tonya is the founding CEO of the Centre for Social Innovation (CSI) a coworking space, community and Launchpad for people who are changing the world, with three locations in Toronto and a location in New York City.

CSI provides its members with the tools they need to accelerate their success and amplify their social impact. Find out more at socialinnovation.org.

Tonya is a Global Ashoka Fellow – the highest global recognition in social entrepreneurship for her innovative work building models of collaboration. She was recognized as a ‘Leader in Social Change’ from the Canadian New Media Awards in 2010. And in 2009, CSI was awarded the ‘City Innovation’ award from the Canadian Urban Institute.

Tonya’s work fundamentally embodies collaboration, entrepreneurship and systems change. The Centre for Social Innovation is the first of its kind in the world - a pioneer in the co-working movement, a driver behind the move toward social enterprise and most recently, an innovator in the creation of a citizen-based Community Bond – a practical social finance tool that was created to purchase CSI Annex - CSI’s second location. Since then, CSI has launched its own crowdfunding platform – Catalyst – csicatalyst.org and Catapult a microloan program for social enterprise.

Tonya co-founded and chaired the Ontario Nonprofit Network for 5 years, is a founding trustee in the Toronto Awesome Foundation (a brown bag of $1000/mth for awesome) and has been a leader within the Ontario Social Economy.
Roundtable and the Social Enterprise Council of Canada. Tonya was instrumental in the replication of the Enterprising Nonprofits Program in Toronto and the rollout of TechSoup Canada among other initiatives.

Previous to CSI, Tonya was the founding Partnership Director for the Canadian Partnership for Children’s Health and Environment, whose work, in part, led to a new legislative framework to manage chemicals and the banning of BPA in baby bottles.

Tonya has been creating and leading social ventures since 1987 and has built her body of knowledge around multi-sectoral collaboration and entrepreneurship for social change.

In her spare time, she is building an urban farm on her roof and hosts outdoor movie nights and street parties in the hood with her husband and two boys in High Park.

Tracey ROBERTSON

Tracey has 25 years of experience in strategic philanthropy, program development, and community capacity building, at a local, provincial and national level. As the Regional Program Manager for the Ontario Trillium Foundation, one of Canada’s largest grant-making organizations, Tracey supports the effective distribution and management of $4.7M annually to over 400 arts and culture, social services, sports and recreation, and environmental organizations in the Waterloo, Wellington and Dufferin areas. She is currently designing an innovation investment strategy for the Foundation.

In 2005, Tracey was the senior lead and analyst for one of OTF’s major research projects that evaluated the impact of OTF’s 100 million dollar investments in building organizational capacity. More recently, Tracey co-designed an innovative and proactive future fund initiative to strengthen youth social entrepreneurship in Ontario. She shares her knowledge and continues her love for learning, as a part-time instructor for the Social Entrepreneurship program at Wilfrid Laurier University. A recognized community builder, she thrives on collaboration, innovation and system-wide change.

Tricia HACKETT

Tricia is an experienced urban development professional and social innovation practitioner with expertise in participatory methodologies, public policy, community and organisational development. She has led action research and community-based projects in a range of international contexts including India, Mozambique, UK, US and several countries in Latin America. Currently, she is leading Realising Ambition for The Young Foundation which is a UK-wide, five year £25 million investment in replicating evidence-based practice in the social sector. Other work includes being an Thematic Expert with URBACT on Innovation and Inclusion, a contributing author to Design for Social Sustainability: How to Create Thriving New Communities (Young Foundation 2011) and a co-author of A Reflection on Strengthening Social Innovation in Colombia (Young Foundation, SIX 2014). Tricia is a lecturer on the Danube University Krems (Austria) Master of Arts in Social Innovation and has an MSc in Urban Development Planning from the Bartlett at UCL (UK) and a BSc in Political Science and Philosophy from Bradley University (USA).
Vadim GRINEVICH

Vadim is a Lecturer in Strategy and Innovation at the University of Southampton Business School. His research expertise includes technological and non-technological innovation, academic entrepreneurship, university-industry links and regional spatial development. His initial interest in social innovation was prompted by his research into academic entrepreneurship in creative arts, and the extent of the links between the University and the not-for-profit sector. He is now exploring the scaling up challenges facing socially innovative enterprises across different socio-spatial and cultural contexts.

Vadim was previously associated with the Martin Centre for Architectural and Urban Studies and Centre for Business Research, both at the University of Cambridge, working on high-profile innovation research projects funded by UK Research Councils, National Institute of Advanced Industrial Science and Technology, Japan and the Australian Business Foundation. As part of the Programme on Regional Innovation at the Cambridge-MIT Institute, Vadim collaborated with the National Endowment for Science, Technology and the Arts (NESTA), and the UK and Northern Ireland Government departments. Vadim holds an MPhil degree in Planning, Growth and Regeneration and a PhD in Management Studies, both from the University of Cambridge.

Vanessa TIMMER

Vanessa Timmer is a co-founder and the Executive Director of One Earth, a Vancouver-based “think and do tank” focused on sustainable consumption and production across scales. One Earth is curating the New Economies theme of Cities for People, initiated by The J. W. McConnell Family Foundation – a Canada-wide experiment in taking collaborative action to create more resilient and livable cities. One Earth works with local to global partners to highlight the links between who we are, what we buy, where we live, what we make, what we trade, and how we live together. Vanessa is working towards North American leadership in this area through change labs and systemic change, with partners including The Story of Stuff Project and The Sustainability Funders, and, on the policy front, with the Canadian and US Government, the United Nations, private sector, media, academia, and civil society.

One Earth is also catalyzing a global campaign to create positive and compelling visions and experiences of life in sustainable futures. With her sister Dagmar, Vanessa co-hosts the Metro Vancouver television show, The Sustainable Region. Locally, One Earth collaborates on achieving the City of Vancouver’s Lighter Footprint Goal as part of the Greenest City Action Plan and Metro Vancouver’s Sustainable Region Initiative. One Earth partners with Light House Sustainable Building Center, Strathcona Business Improvement Association and others to promote and implement eco-industrial networking and innovative resource use and sharing in the False Creek Flats and nationally. In 2013, Vanessa was named one of Business in Vancouver’s Top Forty under 40.

Vanessa is also an Associate with Harvard University’s Sustainability Science Program focused on innovation and manufacturing. She writes, speaks and teaches on social change, leadership, systems thinking and sustainability, including at Simon Fraser University, Metro Vancouver, the University of British Columbia, and the International Institute for Sustainable Development. She holds a Doctorate in environmental studies with degrees from Queen’s University, Oxford University and UBC.

Whitney BOROWKO

Whitney Borowko recently joined the Government of BC as Manager of Mental Health and Substance Use Programs in the Ministry of Health where she is looking forward to contributing to ongoing efforts to create system change in the mental health and addictions system.

Before joining the BC Government, she worked for the Government of Canada as a Senior Policy Analyst in Citizenship and Immigration Canada’s (CIC’s) newly created Policy Innovation Division within the Integration-Foreign Credential Referral Office Branch. In this role, she founded the social innovation file in the department including the development of a social innovation strategy for CIC’s $585 million Settlement Program, which promotes the social and economic integration of newcomers to Canada. Her contributions include exploratory work on new funding approaches (e.g. social finance), new policy tools and interventions (e.g. labs), and new partnerships with early innovators in the private and non-profit sectors.

From 2011-2013, she was the Acting Manager of Policy at Canada Pension Plan Disability (CPPD, Canada’s largest federal income security program for people with disabilities) during a time of fiscal restraint and change. During this time, she led the development of policy work to ensure the CPPD program, founded in the 1960s, continues to be relevant and responsive to the changing needs of Canadians. This work included the development of a proposal, announced in Budget 2013, to protect the incomes of CPPD clients upon the increase in the age of Old Age Security.

Before being recruited to federal government in 2008 through the Recruitment of Policy Leaders program, Whitney had over eight years of in-depth experience as policy researcher and board member of non-profit organizations addressing economic security issues with focus on social assistance policy. This included research and policy work for the Canadian Centre for Policy Alternatives, Vancouver Status of Women, and the BC Centre of Excellence for Women’s Health. Whitney has a Graduate Diploma in Social Innovation from the University of Waterloo and a Masters degree in Public Policy from Simon Fraser University where her scholarships included the TD Canada Trust Scholarship for Outstanding Community Leadership, the largest scholarship of its kind in Canada (valued at $50,000). She also received the SSHRC Canada Graduate Scholarship which supported her thesis work on the policy determinants of food insecurity among Canadians with disabilities.

Wray IRWIN

After a spell of 3 years as the University of Northampton’s social entrepreneur in residence, Wray Irwin now leads the university’s centre for employability and engagement. Wray’s team are responsible for the University’s engagement activities with external stakeholders as well as enhancing the student experience, and raising aspiration within communities where access to a university education is not seen as the norm. Through his work Wray steered the university to attaining the AshokaU Changemaker campus designation, the first and only such designation in the UK and only one of 24 awarded globally. He continues working at a senior level to redefine the student and staff experience at the university by putting social innovation at the heart of the University; supporting organisational change and culture shift at the university.
